Enrolment No. 201851645 In this regard, the Honble Supreme Court of India made it very clear in its judgment in The Institute of Chartered Accountants of India v Shounak H Satya and Ors, AIR 2011 SC 3336, R V Raveendran and A K Patnaik, JJ, who stated: It is obvious that the appellant examining body is not liable to give to any citizen any information relating to question papers, solutions/model answers and instructions relating to a particular examination before the date of such examination. But the position will be different once the examination is held. Disclosure of the question papers, model answers and instructions in regard to any particular examination would not harm the competitive position of third party once the examination is held... therefore Section 8(1)(d) does not bar or prohibit the disclosure of question papers, model answers (solution to questions) and instructions if any given to the examiners and moderators after the examination and after the evaluation of answer scripts is completed, as at that stage they will not harm the competitive position of any third party.
